Observer.

THE ALARM BELL—Citizens should remember that the practice fire alarm bell will ring tonight and hereafter till further notice at 6:30. It will therefore not be a fire alarm unless the big whistle blows with it.

BACK TO ARIZONA—The Star says: "The widow of ex-Governor Safford is now visiting the territory in company with her new husband, Mr. W. V. Parken of Tarpon Springs, Fla. Mrs. Parken is a sister of President Ignacio Bonillas of Nogales, Sonora, and has large property interests in Tombstone and Phoenix."

HILLS ARE GREEN—Thomas Boyle took a little horseback ride yesterday over across the river to the Salt River mountains, where he has some mining claims. He says the hills are all green as the result of the recent rains, and that that region now looks more like a meadow than it does like the desert plain generally presented.

BLUE STARS WON—The first game of baseball between the newly organized Mansfields and the Blue Stars was played at the west end grounds yesterday afternoon, resulting in a victory for the Blue Stars by a score of 13 to 9. The members of the Mansfields are: Loring, Hatcher, Roy Johnson, McLess, Dallas, Stiles, Hixon and Graham. The Blue Stars are: Grjalva, Felix, Quilros, Cass, Michel, Acosta, Enrique, Marquez and E. Grjalva.

PHOENIX TAKES TWO STRAIGHT—The second of the series of games between the Phoenix and the Tempe baseball teams was played at Tempe yesterday. Phoenix won by a score of 12 to 8, having thus won the first and second games of the series. The third game may be played here next Sunday. Yesterday's game was a decided improvement over that of a week ago. The Phoenix team extends a challenge to all clubs of the territory. Special challenges have been sent to Tucson and Congress, but replies have been received from neither.

IRRIGATION LITERATURE—The board of trade has received for general distribution over a hundred copies of pamphlets, three volumes to the set, of literature on irrigation subjects published by the United States department of agriculture. The matter is compiled from the records of the expert permanent stations under the direction of Professor A. C. True and by Professor Elwood Mead, irrigation expert in charge. One of the subjects dealt with in the pamphlets is "The Use of Water in Irrigation in Arizona." The volumes

HE DEPUTIZED A DOCTOR—The boys are calling Marshal Kinney Dr. Kinney. Last Saturday a Mexican woman living in the southern part of town paraded the street in great excitement inquiring for somebody. She addressed her inquiry to a young man whose knowledge of Spanish is not complete. He understood that there was trouble brewing at her house and that police interference was wanted. The young man understood enough Spanish to learn her address, and he could have made out what else she wanted, but he took a fatal jump at a conclusion. He carried a hurry up call to the marshal, and that officer answered it with his usual promptitude. Arriving at the house, he found that somebody was wanted to preside at an anouncement. The marshal hurried back and swore in a doctor.

A WEATHER PROGNOSTICATION—Residents of Phoenix have noted that the weather has been considerably cooler during the last few days and there is now no question but that the back-bone of the hot season is broken. As a further indication Captain A. F. Banta has lost his fan and cool weather must of necessity follow or that reliable indicator will lose its standing with the captain and his friends. Every season when the height of the heated term is on Captain Banta secures a palm leaf palm to add him in keeping cool. As the days go by and the mean temperature gradually lowers the captain takes out his jack knife and trims off the side of the fan, thus reducing its cooling influence and avoiding the danger of catching cold. He began this trimming process early in August and had worked his fan down to about the size of a pigeon's wing, till yesterday a little child friend of his got hold of it and smashed up what was left of it. According to the fan theory, therefore, and it has been pretty well established, cool weather must be already standing at the back door.

SATURDAY NIGHT'S METEOR

It Made a Fiery Show Over a Broad Area.

Dispatches received last night from Flagstaff, Yuma and Needles, Cal., state that the descent of the great meteor witnessed in Phoenix on Saturday night, was observed in those places. The advice from Needles says that other strange astronomical disturbances preceded and followed the flight of the meteor. Showers of falling stars appeared and lingered in the heavens for some time after the most brilliant illumination disappeared, creating a phenomena that was at once unaccountable and spectacular. Having calculations upon probable distance and the apparent size of the blazing ball, astronomers say that the meteor was of remarkable size. Observations made at other points are confirmatory of the account printed by this paper yesterday morning.

The meteor was first observed here almost directly overhead and it traveled for a great distance to the west, brilliantly illuminating the heavens. As it passed the earth the enormous mass burst, sending forth myriad of sky-rockets in all directions. The spectacle was witnessed here by but few persons. Astronomical disturbances were witnessed in Phoenix earlier in the evening, but none of them were of a singular character.

L. M. Dey of the local observatory said: "We observed the fall of the meteor and judged that it was of unusual size. The illumination was so great that buildings were brightened and the leaves of trees plainly reflected the light. I should judge that the meteor could have been witnessed for hundreds of miles around. It probably struck several hundred miles out on the desert."

DEATH OF HARRY ZUCK

Final Summons of One of Arizona's Most Capable Young Men

The death of Harry Z. Zuck of Tempe, which occurred at the home of his parents in Holbrook and which is referred to in the Tempe correspondence of this paper, will bring a pang of sorrow to many friends and acquaintances in this city.

Mr. Zuck was but 32 years old and was an attorney by profession; one who would have achieved no small measure of fame had he lived and maintained his health. He was a native of Illinois, but had resided in Arizona since boyhood. He finished his education in one of the well known colleges on the coast and shortly after attaining his majority was elected district attorney of Navajo county on the republican ticket, over a populist opponent. He made a faithful and efficient officer and enjoyed the respect of all who knew him.

Some years ago he opened an office in Tempe for the practice of his profession, and was later married to a young lady he had formerly known in Illinois. A year or two after coming to Tempe he endured a long siege of typhoid fever, and though seemingly making a good recovery he was never as strong as before, and in his weakened condition he contracted pulmonary trouble which has finally caused his death. While in good health he always took an active part in politics and was considered an able and even a brilliant talker.

During the republican county convention of 1896 when the party was engaged in something of a family fight over the silver question Mr. Zuck made a speech that won for him the respect of both factions, though the fight was bitter and he was very pronounced in his views. From that time forward his counsel in political matters was frequently sought, and the nomination for district attorney would have been given him at the subsequent convention had he not refused the offer of his many friends. He felt then that his interest lay in the building up of his private practice. During late years, however, he has suffered greatly with the complications of his disease, and has been able to work but a small part of the time.

In his death the republican party loses a capable representative, the territory an able and a patriotic citizen, and many who knew him a true and faithful friend.

WANTED NO MISTAKE MADE

But If He Was Dead He Was Willing to Be Buried.

The following is a true story which happened in Phoenix some time ago, but was not made public till recently, and because it is a true story the names are withheld, all the parties to the incident being well known.

A certain citizen was sitting in front of a certain hotel late one night quietly enjoying a jag that had got the better of him and carried him away into a state of unconsciousness. A couple of his friends came along, one of them a local undertaker, and knowing that the man had a room in the hotel, they thought they would do him a kindness and put him to bed. So they lifted him bodily from his chair and carried him up stairs to his room, where a cot was spread out for his convenience and the man placed upon it. Just as the two friends were preparing to leave him the intoxicated man recovered consciousness sufficiently to recognize the undertaker. He supposed, of course, that wherever he was that gentleman was in attendance professionally, and as he rolled the thought around in his tangled mass of brains a question seemed to arise in his mind whether or not he was quite ripe enough for such attention, so with a Herculean effort he thrust out one of his hands and said: "Please—fast my—pulse—and see—if I am—surely dead."

AMUSEMENTS.

The farewell week of the popular Rube Theater company commences tonight, when the celebrated comedy entitled Neil Gwynne will be produced by special request of many patrons of the Park who want to see Miss Simmons once more in the role of the part of "Neil," a role that is particularly fitted for her style of acting. The play itself made an immense hit when produced two weeks ago and will doubtless draw another large audience on this occasion, the last performance of the play. Five different plays will be given this week, all of which are favorites and will tend to make this the banner week of the season.
